Whether your managers, leaders, and SEPMs are new to your organization or new to inclusion concepts, whether they manage only one person or over one hundred, they will leave with ideas, behaviors and inclusive practices they can use immediately.

Do your new managers have all the tools they need to practice inclusive leadership?

Here is what your managers will learn in this interactive program:

- Definition of inclusive leadership at the manager level for your specific organization
- Specific practices that make all people at different levels feel included and belong
- Common biases that are obstacles to inclusion and equity and tools to remove them
- How to develop relationships with employees from different backgrounds
- A simple prototype for inclusion using scenarios
- A language that supports inclusion and language that does not

- A system of support and accountability

Plus, they will get to share challenges, best practices, and have fun.
